ANDOVER AGAIN GETS QUOTA

The Town Passed Her Goal For Salvation Army Fund Drive Yesterday. Over $3,000 Collected From Many Subscribers

Andover, as usual, did her bit in the Salvation Army Fund drive which closed yesterday noon. The chairman, Samuel P. Hulme, has worked hard, however, to put our quota over the top, and it seemed as if the money came in very slowly. The reason for this may have been that the house-to-house canvassers had to delay their work because of the rainy days last week. Then the sums came in in small amounts which show a large number of subscribers, but which take a long time to make the total.

Everybody wanted to give to the Sallies and yet so many demands have been made this year that the amount given from the pocket book could not equal the amount felt in the heart. Saturday afternoon and evening, girls from Lawrence came over in motor trucks with their good doughnuts and realized through their efforts, the sum of $78.08.

The final figures are not yet known, but it is certain that over $3000 will be turned in to this helpful organization.

TO HONOR OUR DEAD

Today's Events Will Be More Full of Significance Than Ever Before

Today is the day on which we celebrate the memory of those many brave heroes who have given their lives that we may have the joys and benefits of this beautiful land, America.

Every year for many years, we have watched the gray-haired kindly old men in their blue uniforms, pay honor to their dead comrades who fought by their sides in the Civil War. And now, this year, they will be joined by the khaki-clad younger heroes of this latest and most terrible war. And they and we will be glad that there have been spared so many of our soldiers and sailors who are able to pay honor to the ones who died for us.

The day begins with services in the Town Hall at 8.30 and everyone is asked to be seated promptly at 8.15. Seats will be reserved for all soldiers, sailors and marines of the American

"ALL SET" FOR PARTY

Barnstormers to Have Dance, Play, Good Things to Eat—A Jolly Get-Together On Tuesday

The Barnstormers are "all set" for their party next Tuesday and everything points toward one of the jolliest and most informal evenings that has been held in Andover for a long time.

With over two hundred members in the club and with each member having the privilege of inviting as many guests as he wishes, there should be a fine representative group of people at the Town Hall. Since Wednesday the number of tickets sold to each member, active or associate, has not been limited, and it is hoped that everybody will feel perfectly free to ask a member to buy tickets. There had to be some kind of a restriction in the matter of selling tickets and, as the membership to the Club has always been practically free to all those interested in and desirous of promoting good dramas, it was felt by the committee that nearly all those who wished to come, would be able to procure their tickets through members.

The idea of having the tables for people to sit at, is to make the party more sociable and to avoid that stiff effect of having everybody arranged in a row along the sides of the hall on settees.

That does not mean, however, that all the people will sit at the tables, for there will be extra seats both on the floor and in the gallery for those who do not wish to engage tables. Only four persons are supposed to sit at each table and that means the price for each person who is at the table, will be seventy-five cents.

Dancing will furnish the main entertainment of the evening; but, in order to give a flavor of "Barnstorming" a short play will be given by two of the members at nine o'clock.

Fifteen girls have been asked to help by going about selling sandwiches, ice cream cones and "pop" drinks. These will be for sale at moderate prices and, as one member said, "A

Decorations and Invited Guests

The wonderfully impressive service was held Sunday in the South Church when over one thousand people came to pay honor to the memory of our Andover dead. Scarcely in the history of the town have there been gathered together so many people in a house of worship and the three churches who took part, the South, the Free and the Baptist, were well represented in the congregation.

Memorial to the Dead

The three ministers, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, Rev. Frederick A. Wilson and Rev. Edwin H. Prescott conducted the services. For those soldiers who gave their lives in service, a short memorial exercise was held by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bigelow.

For the Free church, which lost the first Andover boy to die abroad, Mr. Wilson told briefly of the three men for whom their gold stars stand: David C. S. Croft, Black Watch, Canadian Forces, killed in action April 27, 1918, aged thirty-two; Sgt. William Rae, Black Watch, Canadian Forces, killed in action in France, September 25, 1917.

MAJESTIC
What has been heretofore as surpassing any previous moving picture event in the history of Boston is announced for June 2nd, when "The Unpardonable Sin," the screen version of Major Hubert Hughes' novel of that name will begin what is expected to be a long run at the Majestic Theatre, Boston.
Blanche Sweet, one of the greatest film favorites of the day, will be seen in the leading role.

It may be recalled that soon after the book had been published by Harper Bros., it was endorsed by the late Theodore Roosevelt in the controversy with the management of the New York Public Library. Since that time, in film form, it has been indorsed by the thousands of patrons of motion picture houses in different parts of the country, although it will have its first New England showing here in Boston.

The exceptional work of Blanche Sweet in this play is a great feature of Miss Sweet trained in the old school of screen acting, when versatility was essential, won her spurs under the tutelage of David Wark Griffith. Matt Moore, Wallace Berry and others show a splendid conception of the important roles they have been given to play. The picture sets a standard of photographic and technical excellence hitherto unequaled, and was eight months in the making. This picture will be presented twice daily, afternoons at 2:15 and evenings at 8:15.

COPYLEY
The Henry Jewett Players will present "Niobe" for the first time at the Copyley Repertory Theatre on Monday evening, which will open the summer season there. "Niobe" is a farce by Harry and Edward Paulton, a fantastic play in three acts with Peter Amos Dunn, a shrewd, practical business man, and Niobe, "widow of the late Amphion, King of Thebes," as its central personages. Its theme is the same as the ancient classical legend of "Pygmalion and Galatea," best known to playgoers through W. S. Gilbert's play of that name, but the playwrights treat the subject humorously instead of seriously.

During the first act, a statue in the home of Peter Amos Dunn comes to life, and the complications that ensue thereafter are naturally productive of unlimited fun-making. Peter Amos Dunn, who happens to be present at the moment of her resurrection, as made the object of her frank affection, to his great embarrassment and to the amusement of the others around him.
Unlike another Niobe described by Shakespeare, this "Niobe" is "all smiles," and she will provide a week of unlimited laughter at the Copyley.

For the one week only. Attention is called to the popular Tuesday and Thursday matinees, when each seat in the entire orchestra is available for $1.00, with excellent seats in the balcony for 25 cents, 50 cents and 75 cents.

TREMONT
The tremendous success which has been met by "Flo-Flo" at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, has stamped this production as one of the best musical comedy productions ever shown at this most popular of New England theatres.
The reason for this is not hard to seek,
for its qualities are exactly those which go to make up the ideal musical entertainment.

Its producer, John Cort, who has to his credit so many worthy musical productions, has adhered to his high standard of productions in "Flo-Flo," with the result that there is apparent a lavishness of display, principal of which is what a prominent critic has called, "the Lingerie Parade." This is a display of the most advanced examples of midday's fashions in frocks, frills and furbelows in a really bewildering amplitude. Everything that the geniuses of fashion have invented to tempt women of feminine charm from boudoir to banquet is shown upon subjects who are termed by the producer, "the Perfect 36 Beauty Chorus," a title they merit well.

The remainder of the evening was spent by singing all the popular songs and Miss McCrory rendered many beautiful selections on the piano. Refreshments were served.

the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mc-Dermott, Monday evening, when Mrs.
Walter Sullivan of Lawrence, formerly Miss Margaret McGrath of Andover, was presented with a beautiful dinner
set in recognition of her recent marriage.

Miss Jessie Bland presented Mrs.
Sullivan with the set, in behalf of those present and they all joined in wishing her prosperity.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY

aged twenty-seven; and Charles A.
Young of Company F, 101st Infantry, U. S. A., died August 18, 1918 of wounds received in the battle of Chateau Thierry on July 23rd, aged twenty-three.
Mr. Bigelow then gave a little history about the two men whose gold stars are on the South Church flag.

Phillips Garrison Morrison was born March 22, 1891; enlisted as a mechanical engineer July 30, 1917; received the rank of captain at the Frankfort Arsenal, Pennsylvania, January 22, 1918;
died of pneumonia at the Aberdeen
Proving Grounds, Maryland, October 12, 1918.

John Howard Baker was born June 29, 1897, enlisted as a private in Battery F, 102nd Field Artillery; served in France with the 20th Division; died of pneumonia, January 3, 1919 at Base Hospital 53, Langres, France.

One of the most inspiring parts of the whole service was the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee" by that big congregation when everybody realized that these men had gone to their eternal Father.

Music Especially Enjoyed

The musical part of the service was one of the loveliest parts. Frederic G.
Moore, organist and chorister of the South Church, directed the combined choirs of the South and Free churches.
There were forty voices and they sang excellently "Awake, Awake, Put on Thy Strength, O Zion," and the "Sevenfold
Amen" after the benediction. Private J.
Everett Collins whose voice has not been heard in Andover for over a year, as he was one of the Battery F boys in France, with the Yankee division, sang beautifully as an offertory anthem, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel." The South
Church quartet which has Mrs. Moore, soprano, Miss Bedell, alto, Mr. Bassett, tenor and Mr. Collins, bass, gave a response after the prayer by Rev. E. H.
Prescott. The order of the service was:

Organ Prelude, Anthem, "The Lord's Prayer"
Call to Worship, Invocation and Lord's Prayer
Responsive Reading, Selection 62, led by Rev.
E. H. Prescott

Gloria and the Apostles' Creed
Anthem, "Awake, Awake, Put on Thy Strength, O Zion"

Offertory, Baritone Solo, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel"

Capt. Stackpole's Splendid Address
No one could have been better qualified to be the preacher of the day than Captain Markham W. Stackpole, who was chaplain for the 102nd Field Artillery in France. Chaplain Stackpole was loved by all his boys and his kind helpfulness was appreciated by the many hundreds of men with whom he came in contact.

His address was full of inspiration and only the main thoughts can be given here.

Chaplain Stackpole said that Memorial Day could not have fuller significance for him and the members of his regiment, than it had one year ago, when on May 30th they went to the little American cemetery near Foul and decorated the graves of over ninety American boys who had fallen on the battlefield. The American flag was lying there on that French soil and French women and children came bringing flowers and wreaths to strew on the graves of the new Allies. Those boys there would never forget that day, nor would he; and now they realized just what Memorial Day has meant to our Civil War veterans. These older men have been joined by two other generations and together they will maintain the true spirit of Memorial Day.

In the case of the Civil War, however, there was a difference, because those men who died could be buried in their own country. The comrades for this war are across the ocean. But he hopes that the ones at home will allow the bodies of their boys to remain in the friendly soil of France. There will they always be hallowed and cherished, — there on the field of honor where they fell.

Many memorials may be written, but the one true memorial is written in the heart. Gratitude and affection for those who did not come back will be in our hearts. And this will be felt equally for those who died in battle as for the ones to whom death came quietly in camp or hospital. All make up the army of those "who climbed the steep ascent of heaven, through peril, toil and pain."

Captain Stackpole said that on the Honor Roll there should be no dividing line between the living and the dead.
"Two men are in the field," he said,
"one is taken, the other is spared."
One was just as brave, as faithful and true to duty as the other, and so how can a distinction be made? What counts is what one thinks in his heart and only oneself may know that. The real Honor Roll then, includes all heroes who are brave in their hearts and who have done their duty in spite of being afraid.

And this Honor Roll includes besides the ones who have died as heroes and the ones who have come home heroes, those men for whom the light of day will never again shine, those whose reason has gone and those who are maimed for life and yet remain cheerful and hopeful of finding a place of service in the world.

In closing Chaplain Stackpole said:
"We over there, could not understand the feelings of the ones who remained at home. Neither could you at home realize our feelings over there. But now it is all over and we are glad to be at home again, to see the friendly faces and walk in the old streets again.

This is a day of thanksgiving and we appreciate more than ever before, the Homeland, the Home Fires, the Home Ties. We are all one, you of the Civil War and we of two generations, those who went across, those who stayed at home, and those who will never return."

For the Sailor Dead

In the afternoon, in spite of the showers, the annual memorial flower service was held for those who died and were buried at sea. The service was at the Stevens street bridge over the Shawheen river at four o'clock, and had been arranged by the Walter L.
Raymond Camp No. 111, Sons of Veterans' auxiliary.

School children and Boy Scouts helped at these exercises by singing, and by strewing the flowers on the waters.

Rev. E. Victor Bigelow paid a fine tribute to those men who died at sea in his address, and the whole program as arranged would have been most impressive had the weather proved less unfavorable.

The program was arranged as follows:

Bugle Call, "Assembly"

What About the Telephone

In connection with the general popular demand for the return of the telephone companies, which probably will be considered by the present Congress, President Vail of the Bell System and President Robinson of the independent telephone association have issued the following joint statement:

On midnight, July 31, 1918, under the authority of Congress for war purposes, the President took supervision, possession, control and operation of the telephone systems of the country and has since operated them. The war has practically ceased. The public press is strongly demanding the general public and the owners of the telephone properties are urging that they be returned as speedily as possible, that former conditions may be restored and more satisfactory service be afforded. The President and the Postmaster General have announced that this will be done as soon as adequate arrangements be provided for receiving and advantageously operating them. It remains only for Congress to enact such legislation as speedily as possible.

The expenses of these systems have largely increased during the past year, for wages alone at the rate of more than $20,000,000 per annum. This was inevitable and necessary by reason of larger proportional increased by the railroads and industries of the country.

The revenues are inadequate to care for such increased, and the deficit of the Government on that account to date is large and steadily increasing. The Postmaster-General ordered that steps be taken to secure adequate revenues, but contentions with the regulatory authorities of the States, not yet settled, have prevented such adjustments.

If such conditions continue, necessarily the credit of the operating companies will be impaired, proper expenses cannot be met, the best operating forces cannot be retained, needed extensions and satisfactory service cannot be provided. A deterioration will ensue which in some localities may threaten a recurrence to public ownership or operation in order to care, even inadequately, for public needs. By prompt action
Congress can prevent this contingency.

Just and speedy settlements should be made for all properties taken under the existing law, that such balances now in the possession of the Government may be restored to assist in the upbuilding and extension of the various systems for better public use. The conditions and regulation of operation should be clearly defined so as to permit the companies to re-establish and maintain a satisfactory service with reasonable rates without discrimination and procure the benefits of legitimate competition. The principal operating companies of the United States are vitaly interested in co-operating with Congress and the officials of the Government to accomplish these results.

Christ Church Notes

Letter of Thanks from China

The Editor Andover Townsman, Andover, Mass., U. S. A.

Dear Sir:
Will you please express to our many Andover friends, through your paper, the hearty appreciation of Mrs. H.
Richardson and myself for the many steamer letters from them. The purser did his duty nobly: the first package of letters was delivered our second day at sea and the others came on the Sundays we spent aboard. Our surprise and delight can be imagined only by those who recall their first trip seven thousand miles from home.

We are answering each good friend individually, but eighty-six letters require time — may all be patient!

Ladies' Day at Free Church

The Andover Association of Ministers held its annual ladies' day meeting in the Free Church parish house on Tuesday, and in spite of the street railway strike, there was a large attendance. Ministers and their wives were present from Lowell, Lawrence and Andover.

The morning session was opened with a short devotional service, after which an informal address was given by Rev. William G. Puddfoot, D. D., of Boston. Mrs. Chauncey A. Hawkins of Lowell, gave a very valuable and interesting address on "The Rebirth of the Missionary Society."

At noon luncheon was served by the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Free Church, under the direction of Mrs. H. A. Ramsdell, president.

The afternoon session opened with reminiscences by several of the ministers present, after which a musical hour was enjoyed. Piano solos by Mrs. Edmund B. Haynes, piano duets by Mrs. John C. Angus and Mrs. Henry C. Sanborn and vocal solos by Miss Thelma Wannamaker and Miss Mabel Carter were much enjoyed. Mrs. Angus was the accompanist for the solos.

All present joined in the singing of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's stirring "Battle Hymn of the Republic," in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the author's birth. Then the afternoon exercises were brought to a close with the singing of "America."

GUILD REPORT

Miss Davis, Superintendent, Gives In Review, Work Accomplished During Past Year

The Andover Guild is an institution that the majority of people in town have got in the habit of taking as a matter of course. They know it is there, they are glad it is there, but they do not give it much thought, save on state occasions. Just as the best tea set used, to be admired on that once-a-year occasion, when the minister comes to call, so the Andover Guild gets a thought of praise when the annual exhibition is given in the Town Hall.

But, in spite of this general ignoring of the Andover Guild by the majority of persons, it goes on doing a splendid work every year. And the reason for this is that the ones in whose hands the real work of the Guild has been placed, have been so energetic and enthusiastic and capable. Miss Fannie E. Davis has made a most efficient superintendent for the past few years, and she has kept things moving progressively. Miss Taylor's success would never be doubted by anyone who saw the excellent exhibition in the Town Hall last winter.

At the annual meeting held Tuesday evening, May 13th, very few people were present, but those who were there realized what a fine year the Guild has just had. Those who were not present will realize this, also, when they read the annual report of Miss Davis which is given below.

Events move so rapidly these days, that a year in actual experience seems to involve a life-time in reality. Thus, when the moment comes to stop for the backward look, and in an annual review, give an account of the days and months that have passed; there is difficulty in adjusting one's thought, as a year ago seems so far removed from the present experience that it no longer seems a part of it.

As we came up to the annual meeting in May 1918, the country was in the midst of war, and community activities were greatly affected by war conditions. A division of interest existed, for there was the boy "overseas" who claimed thought, and there was work to be done here that claimed time in order that America's participation in the great war might be a potent factor toward the victory we believed in.

During the summer months the Guild House was a busy place with the activities of the Red Cross. The supply room, the extra days devoted to sewing and getting ready the huge packing cases of garments and the cases of clothing sent to the needy "overseas," the Home Service activity, of the Red Cross holding regular office hours for the work among soldier's families, utilized the entire administration part of the Guild. As the fall months came on, the Red Cross Committee found that the November, Club House was inadequate for the surgical dressings department of the work, and a plan was evolved, whereby the Red Cross activities could be placed under one roof, and a request was made to the Guild Board of Directors, for the use of the Guild House as the logical center for their work, providing such an arrangement could be made without interfering with the Guild activities. Finally an adjustment was made by changing the Guild schedule to accommodate the housing of the Red Cross work. The Guild season was cut down one month, in order that the Red Cross might have full use of the building with as little interruption as possible. This plan was accepted by the Red Cross committee and was already to be put into operation when November 12th dawned and the world suddenly awakened to the fact that an armistice had been signed and the war was at an end.

By December 1st, the Red Cross work so radically changed, that the demand for surgical dressings was no longer such as to require the use of the Guild gymnasium; so a re-arrangement was made with regard to the further use of the building, and the Guild season opened with its regular program and its regular schedule for the most successful season yet.

Through the fall months came the trying days of the influenza epidemic, with the attendant danger and depression, and a second outbreak here in Andover made it necessary to close the Guild after its first two opening days, for a week, per order of the Board of Health. However, in face of all this, never has such enthusiasm been shown on the part of the membership to return for the season's work, or such eagerness on the part of new members to join as was demonstrated this year. There seemed to be a new spirit, a new enthusiasm, a certain indescribable something had even lifted, and the world was adjusting itself to a more normal state; all the pent-up feelings, and suppressed emotions were loosed once more, and humanity was again in the mood to participate in joyous things. This spirit permeated the whole Guild membership and a most enthusiastic enjoyment of the Guild activities has been the result.

Thus from the point of view of interest and enthusiasm; from the point of view of a record membership; and the point of view of increased receipts, we can count this our banner year.

Girls' Department

Long before the Guild opened and especially after the armistice was signed, repeated requests came from the girls as to when the Guild was going to open, and a deep expression of longing for the time to really come. All this expression proved to be sincere. Many old girls returned and new girls came to join. The Girls' Department has had an unprecedented year under the splendid leadership of Miss Vivian Taylor, who returned for her fourth season of service. Too much cannot be said in praise of Miss Taylor's valuable work or her untiring effort to build up the girls' department from year to year. The actual work in the senior girls department has been of exceptional excellence.

Basketball has been very popular. The girls have organized two teams. Having two, created a splendid inter-Guild spirit and gave opportunity for scientific practice each class period. Both teams played outside games and had a good record for the season.

The Junior girls' department has surpassed all previous records. There were over one hundred Junior girls who came for classes on Friday afternoon. This meant an enrollment of over fifty in each class. Through this group the Guild reaches out into the whole community. It is a great satisfaction to feel that parents are beginning to realize the opportunity right here, and are having their children share the advantage of it. Many new children have been enrolled, and many new friends have had an opportunity to get a glimpse of the work that is being accomplished by the Guild in this community. Basketball was also a favorite game with this group, and two teams were organized which afforded good practice for the girls.

The High School class displayed great enthusiasm in their work this year. The class membership was composed of many girls who had taken active part in the Junior work last season, and they brought into the class some of that contagious spirit and vim. A basketball team was organized and they played a few outside games. Though defeated, their spirits were not at all crushed, but rather stimulated to the purpose of a good record next year.

The aesthetic dancing class continued this year, with a very large enrollment. This class met on Saturday mornings throughout the season. The work of the class has meant unusual training for little girls from eight to twelve years of age. The special dancing at the exhibition was chosen from this group, and their training could be judged somewhat from the type of work presented at that time.

Boys' Department

The problem of a Physical Director for the boys seemed satisfactorily solved before the Guild opened, in the appointment of Mr. Fred Karlson for the position. He accomplished splendid work with them during the short period he served as Director, and it was a great disappointment when he decided he must give up the work. From that moment the boys' work went through many changes, and the problem of new director seemed an ever present one. The men who might have been available were either still at camp or "overseas." Finally it was necessary to look to our own ranks and one of the Senior boys was asked to take charge. George Davis had just returned from camp and the training of the years in the Guild gymnasium, together with his army camp experience, seemed to qualify him for the work required. He was glad to accept the position and was most successful in the work. The department was swinging very well under his direction until toward the end of the season when he was obliged to give up the work. Again the problem of Director and again another senior boy was chosen. George Haddon accepted the position and rendered faithful, efficient service until about three weeks before the exhibition, when he accepted a position that involved night work and this necessitated his giving up the Guild work. The exhibition program was now well under way, and for a time it seemed that the boys part of that program would be seriously affected. However, though Miss Taylor was already under great pressure with her work, she finally consented to take the boys at this point and drill them for the exhibition. The boys responded in manly fashion and put in some solid work under her direction, and accomplished it all with credit. George Haddon came for some final practice in apparatus work and the program was presented as originally planned. In spite of the handicap, the many changes made in the boys' work, the interest and enthusiasm remained the same throughout the season.

The enrollment far exceeded any previous season. There was an average attendance of about seventy-five boys each Monday and Thursday evening. With such a large attendance the problems of occupying the boys was a grave one. The two Junior pool tables immediately proved inadequate to the demand. This need was met, however, in the generous gift of one of the Directors of a fine table. This gift furnished no end of enjoyment for the remainder of the season and was much appreciated by the boys.

Checkers was a favorite game this season and became an exceedingly popular one when the spirit of contest was introduced as to the champion for the season in games.

The victrola was a never-ending source of pleasure and was constantly in use.

The bowling alleys under the direction of Alfred Harris and Kerr Sparks, were well patronized throughout the season.

Basketball has been a popular sport with all the boys. The Senior boys worked hard for a champion team and lost the honor by one regular game playing the same rules. This was a great disappointment indeed.

A second team in the senior group played several games with outside teams with attendant scores and defeats.

The Junior boys organized three teams and the Intermediate boys had a well-picked team that played High School teams of the Lawrence Y. M. C. A., and the Punched Freshmen.

The Junior boys played after school when such an arrangement could be made. This was always a splendid way

June 15th, a Date for Taxpayers

Attention of taxpayers is called by Collector of Internal Revenue, John F. Mulley, to June 15, 1919, the date named for payment of the second installment of income and war profits and excess profits taxes based on returns for the calendar year 1918, and for payment of the second installment of other taxes the first installment of which was due on March 15th.

"Since June 15th falls on Sunday, such payments reaching the collector on Monday, June 16, 1919, will be accepted in full without interest or penalty. Taxpayers are urged to make payment on or before that date, and their attention is called to the fact that Section 250 (a) of the Revenue Act of 1918, specifying when tax payments are due, omits the ten-day period of grace allowed under the former law. Failure to pay the second installment on or before June 16, 1919, will necessitate the addition of penalties and interest, as provided by law."

Children ask for it—why don't you?

Friend's Milk Bread

Mothers approve of Friend's Bread for two reasons anyway—

The children like it and ask for it.

The bread itself means plenty of milk, fats and nourishing wheat.

Two good reasons, surely, for making Friend's Bread a household necessity in your home.

Friend's Bread is made under ideal conditions—in kitchens spotlessly clean and equipped with the most scientific aids to bread-making. The material used are of the best, and the actual bread-makers are experts. Friend's Bread comes to you wrapped in wax paper—sweet, healthful and tasty bread.

Independent Action

This is a pretty mess that the street car people of Lawrence have gotten the public into in this latest evidence of irresponsibility run riot in public service. There seems to be no issue involved. The facts as agreed are that a motorman was under the influence of liquor and under those conditions operated a street car. At least we have seen no denial of the truth of this statement. Promptly, as he ought to have done, the superintendent of the division discharged the man. All of the men's mates demand he should be reinstated and on the refusal of the officials to reinstate him the entire public depending on the street car system is discommoded. To be sure this isn't a very large portion of our citizenship compared to what used to ride upon the street cars, but enough to make discomfort. If it were only a dozen people it would be the same, inasmuch as it is public service thus disrupted and the public ought to most emphatically protest.

Few of us realize how we take our lives in our hands when we trust them to some of the men who are responsible as motormen are under present conditions. We can recall when the men who ran the cars on the Bay State Street Railway were pretty fine citizens, the kind you liked to talk with, the kind you liked to become interested in, the kind you could rely upon and there are some of this sort still there, but the percentage has been dwindling pretty steadily under the aggressive, impudently assertive methods controlling all public service during the past few years. If the time has come when the lives of the travelling public are to be entrusted to irresponsible motormen on the akase of a labor grievance committee, the time has come for the entire disruption of the Bay State Street Railway, the ripping up of the rails and the going back to the old condition of travel plus any other more modern elements that may serve without any of the modern abuses.

Memorial Day

It will be interesting to follow Memorial Day exercises as they will be held all over the country this year. While the old veterans of '61 to '65 no longer make an impressive body from the standpoint of their many numbers, they do make a most impressive body because they are so few. But there has been added to the group of men who must be recognized as those who have made sacrifices for their country a great mass of men who have just passed through the world war. These will have no official position in the program of this year but they will have a very striking position in the hearts and thoughts of the American people. There will be the mission not to give a new meaning to Memorial Day but to maintain all of the old significance of that day for generations ahead.

There is no place in the program of perpetuation, for jealousies and misunderstandings that will lead to any friction, because of the number of factions interested in promoting such a program. The call today is for recognition of that failing group of '61 and '65 for what they did; there is a call for recognition of their sons and family members because of their closer relationship to them; there is a call for a never failing appreciation of the willingness of men in the minor wars days to do and die as called upon so to do; there is a call for such realization of the lessons taught by the sacrifices and service rendered by the men who have passed through the world war that shall forever hold them in grateful memory; but which in that holding shall lead them to feel the responsibility of the tasks they are undertaking in the days of restoration ahead, made necessary because of their sacrifices, and to be made of value to the people of the world only through a continued willingness of all the different forces to serve.

Good Sense

Perhaps it may be because the editor so thoroughly agrees with the writer, but we would like to think it is because of the genuine merit in the article itself, that we want to commend most highly the communication in another column from Steven T. Byington, touching the League of Nations. The article is one of the clearest cut and most clearly expressed estimates of the present situation that we have seen in print. We can only wish that it might be accurate in its prophecy as to the attitude that the public will have in the days to come, toward this present plan for peace unconfined. We are meeting in these times altogether too many men who like to insist that the Republican party cannot afford to oppose the League of Nations. Mr. Byington is a refreshing opposite of this viewpoint, and the writer agrees with him most heartily that we may well ponder very carefully upon the many issues involved in the remarkable turnover that American diplomacy and American international relationships must have if we are to maintain any such plan for world peace as is proposed in the present Wilson program.

Again, all who believe that the line of least resistance may lead to serious disaster, will rejoice that there is an awakening of the American people to the dangerous conditions made possible by the Wilson plan, and a greater willingness on the part of those people to express opposition to the plan. We have been following altogether too blindly in the past four years a blind leadership. When the blind attempts to lead the blind, dangerous drifting is pretty sure to follow. There is a possibility—even more, there is a probability—that the American people may rejoice that we have a Senate in the next year or two, fully as much as they have on occasions regretted that fact.

Editorial Cinders

Indications are that the Highway Department has practically finished its work of coating the main streets of the town. If this is so, let us hope that the next move is to find some way of getting relief from the terrible situation confronting every one who drives over Andover Hill. The wear and tear on an automobile from Chapel Avenue to Porter Road is probably greater on the same machine than for the entire distance from Porter Road to the city of Boston. There is not a piece of highway in Andover so seriously concerning so many people as this one, and if the Board of Public Works is to recognize the jobs ahead on their merit, it cannot ignore the call of Andover hill.

South Church Notes

The Gradle Roll Party brought together forty-three children and their mothers on Tuesday afternoon for their annual meet. The beautiful scene was witnessed by a number of privileged guests who had no babies, but had warm hearts. Miss Barnard and Miss Bushnell with fine kindergarten skill, entertained in many ways, the children who were old enough to leave their mother's arms. Mrs. Philip Ripley, Mrs. Austin Wade and Miss Mildred Jenkins provided simple refreshments and there was a mystery package for each one to unfold—toys of all sorts, fitted to their taste. Miss Mary Richards has eighty-seven of these little ones under five years of age in the parish, whose birthdays are all kept until they are old enough to enter the Sunday School.

The union service of last Sunday seemed to meet the highest expectations of the people, filling the thousand seats of the church and overflowing into many chairs. Captain Stackpole's sermon was much appreciated and the music for the day was faultless. The next morning service of general public interest will be on Sunday, June 8th, when the graduating class of Abbot Academy will hear their baccalaureate sermon preached by Rev. D. Brewer Eddy. All friends are cordially invited to participate in this service which is also expected to fill the church to its capacity.

VOTED TO DISBAND

Company H to be in Parade Tomorrow—Will Form Rifle Club

This morning the men of Company H, 16th regiment, M. S. G., may come together for the last time in their uniforms.

At the weekly drill last week it was voted to disband and Captain Page is taking up the matter with state authorities.

At 8.15 this morning they are to have the Company picture taken at the Borden Gymnasium. Then they will march to the square and take part in the Memorial Day parade.

The company decided that, since there is no armory in town and they cannot use the Phillips Academy Gymnasium after June, and since the Lawrence strike is over, there are few reasons for continuing. They did wish, however, to form a permanent organization to continue their good fellowship and physical training and voted to form a rifle club. First sergeant Hamblin presided at their meeting, and the following men were appointed to make plans and report at a later meeting: Sergeants H. A. Bodwell, Roy H. Bradford, George A. Christie, Corp. E. M. Weeks and first-class private Ernest King.

They plan also to have social events and an annual dinner may be held. The committee will arrange if possible, to take over the Andover Citizen's Rifle Club since nearly all of its members have been, or are members of the company. An invitation to former members of Co. 11 of the Home Guard company is extended to join the new organization which will have no military standing or obligations of any kind.

The company meetings every Thursday have played an important part in the lives of these men and there is no doubt but what most of them will break up the company with regret. Their biggest contribution to the welfare of the community was when they had their ten days' trip to the Emory Hill Base hospital in Lawrence. Much credit for the organizing and systematizing of the work there was due Captain Page, and the authorities at the Camp were full of praise for Andover's captain and company.

Andover Post, American Legion

All Army, Navy and Marine Corp men returned to Andover, are earnestly requested to meet Friday, May 30th, at 7.15 a. m., at the Army and Navy Club for the sincere purpose of observing Memorial Day and of assisting those Veterans, but for whose services sixty years ago, we would have had small opportunity of having any bit to do today.

The Army will appear in uniform and the Navy in dress blues and white hats. On Tuesday, June 3rd, the first regular meeting will be held at the Army and Navy Club at 8.00 p. m. Please circulate this news to the few service men who do not read the Townsman.

HORACE HALE SMITH, Chairman Organizing Committee.

F. L. Quinby Appreciated in France

The following letter was published in "The Philanthropist" and will be of interest to Mr. Quinby's Andover friends.

Mr. P. S. Page,
Physical Director, P. A.
Andover, Mass.

Dear Mr. Page:
Mr. Frank Lees Quinby of Andover, Mass., who has been overseas for the Y. M. C. A. doing Foyer du Soldat service for the French Army, has now returned. Mr. Quinby went to France late in April, 1918, and served as a Director of a Foyer du Soldat until April, 1919. Part of his work was the initiation of the French into the mysteries of American outdoor sports. Under the direction of the right American teachers, 15,000 Frenchmen were given this instruction.

As you know this work has been of unusually large importance and has been so greatly appreciated by the French Government, that it is to be continued after Peace is declared, under the auspices of the Government itself and is to develop to meet the needs of much larger groups in France.

We are very grateful for the long and effective service that Mr. Quinby has rendered, and we want his friends to know our appreciation and gratitude. We hope you will pass on this information to others who may be glad to receive it.

Yours very sincerely,
EDWARD S. PARSONS

Concert Greatly Enjoyed

The "Hymn of Praise" by Felix Mendelssohn was given in the Stone Chapel last evening before a large audience. Bradford Academy Leonora Society, Phillips Academy Choir and the Andover Choral Society were assisted by Mrs. F. G. Moor, soprano, Mr. George Boynton, tenor, Mrs. J. C. Angus at the piano and Mr. H. U. Camp at the organ and by the Phillips Academy orchestra, under the direction of Carl F. Platteicher, gave the beautiful cantata.

Over one hundred and twenty-five voices were in this large chorus and the work of Mr. Platteicher was evidenced in the excellent rendition of such a difficult musical composition.

Costumes for Reunionites

At the commencement exercises in June, there will be something which heretofore has been unseen at an Andover commencement, and something which should mark the beginning of a new era in P. A. reunions.The custom which has been so successful at many colleges for so many years; namely, the fancy dress costume for each class, will be started here this year by the class of '94, in commemoration of their twenty-fifth reunion. Mil-lington's band of Lawrence has been hired to follow and play for the class wherever it goes. The school jazz will also help out in the entertainment on the 13th.

TO LEAVE TOWN

B. Frank Michelsen Resigns as Organist and Choirmaster at Christ Church—To be in New BedfordAndover, as well as Christ Church, will be sorry to lose B. Frank Michelsen.
He has been having trouble with his eyes for some time and now the doctors have ordered a complete rest for six months. That means he has resigned from his position as organist and choirmaster at Christ Church, which resignation will take effect September first.
He is to leave soon for his former home,
New Bedford.Mr. Michelsen came in 1911 to Christ Church from Grace Church in New Bedford, where he had been assistant to the wellknown organist, Edgar A.
Barrell. The musical conditions in the church at that time demanded a keen organizer and the new organist went to work with enthusiasm and efficiency to develop a high standard of music. As choirmaster he had splendid results with his boys' and men's vested choir and he also trained a girls' choir which has sung during Lent and in the summer.Through his efforts, many improvements for the cultivation of music have been made at the church. He was instrumental in purchasing a grand piano for the parish house which was greatly needed for all kinds of entertainments. Then, five years ago, he was responsible for the re-arrangement of the choir stalls which so materially added to the dignity of the service.
A. B. LeBoutillier made the plans for this remodeling and the change was greatly appreciated by the whole parish.
Mr. Michelsen, also, established an annual choirmasters' admission service when certificates are awarded to those admitted to full membership of the choir.In town affairs Mr. Michelsen has always taken an interested part. He was married in 1912 to Miss Isabel Harwood of New Bedford and both he and his wife have made places for themselves in the life of the town.
They have two children, Franklin and Elizabeth. Mr. Michelsen was the organizer and first president of the Andover Citizen's Rifle Club. He will not soon be forgotten as Mr. Brown in the Barnstormers' play of several years ago, when he made his debut with that club.Mr. Michelsen has a keen appreciation for music and he is also the composer of several published songs and musical compositions. His words to "America", called "Deo Gratia" have been sung in many churches and were reprinted in "The Living Church." For the Victory Jubilee service he wrote music for Whittier's "Laus Deo," and the "Benedicite in B. Flat" has been published in "The Parish Choir" by Rev. C. L. Hutchins, compiler of the Church Hymnal.Blanchard Ralph, a pupil of Mr.
Michelsen, is acting as his substitute at Christ Church until a successor is appointed. He plans to move soon with his family, to his former home in New Bedford, where he will continue his work in music. His many friends in town wish him all possible success in his future surroundings and know that he will continue to make a name for himself in the field of music.

Date Set for Trial

Mrs. Bessie Mae (Skeels) Lundgren, indicted by the Grand Jury at the September term of court last year, for the murder of Miss Florence W. Gay, the Abbot academy school teacher in December, 1917, will be sent to trial before Judge Webster Thayer of Worcester at a special session of Superior Criminal court at Lawrence, either June 10th or June 15th. This announcement was made Monday by District Attorney Henry G. Wells of Haverhill. The trial will be started as soon after the adjournment of the present term of court at Newburyport, as is expedient.

NEWS OF ANDOVER SUBURBS

WEST PARISH

The friends of Miss Emma Ward will be glad to know that her condition is somewhat improved.

Miss Anna Chase who has been in Dorchester for sometime, has now returned to her home on Haggett's Pond Road.

Mrs. George Ward visited her daughter in Abington for the week-end, returning by auto with Mr. Ward on Sunday evening.

Friday evening, June 7th, the Women's Club of the Grange will meet at the Grange Hall to sew for the Red Cross at two o'clock. In the evening the young ladies of the Grange, with Amy Lundgren as chairman, will serve supper, followed by dancing.

The young ladies of West Parish Church gave to Mrs. Kenneth Hilton a pleasant surprise, when they met at Miss Olive Hardy's on Haggett's Pond Road, to give her a shower of gifts, in honor of her recent marriage. A pleasant evening was spent with games, music and refreshments. Those present were the following: Mrs. Kenneth Hilton, Mrs. Laura Stevens, Mrs. Emma Cates and Misses Bernice Bontwell, Olive Hardy, Eunice Lovejoy, Myrtle Livingston, Bertha Livingston, May Noyes, Beatrice Poland, Martha Macaloney, Pauline and Elba Petersen, Ruth Abbott, Pearl McCollum, Delia Belisle and Helen Hoskins.

Grange Meeting

The meeting of the Grange on Tuesday was a very lively and interesting one. The farmer and his place in the community, his value to the commonwealth, what could be done to place him on a surer footing, the labor situation on a farm, the food problem, what machinery can do to make work more easily and quickly done were all discussed in a way that showed farmers were waking up, that they realize now that if they stand together they can be whatever they want to be and get whatever they want. This discussion was followed by a plea that the Grange stand by the promoters of a petition to defeat the Lane bill, which appropriates $300,000,000 to reclaim land to make farms for the returned soldiers, as it is firmly believed that there are thousands of abandoned farms that could be made of use at a much less amount and give to the soldiers a far better chance. After a short talk, all present signed the petition.

Farmer (to new help)—Why do you always ring that small bell after ringing the regular dinner bell?
Irish Cook—That's to call the children, son.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT M. A. C.

Forty-five Courses Offered in Agriculture, Horticulture, Education, etc., with College Board of Education in Co-operation

Plans for the Summer School have just been announced by the Massachusetts Agricultural College. These plans include many changes. The Summer School is no longer a part of the Extension Service, but will be in charge of the Director of Short Courses.

The cooperation of the College and the Massachusetts Board of Education makes it possible to provide this year a large number of courses in education which will be of value to teachers. These courses include subjects in the school curriculum and in methods of teaching. A large number of related courses will also be given. The program for the Summer School is particularly attractive and a large attendance of teachers and others interested is expected.

The College and the Massachusetts Board of Education will cooperate to provide instruction for teachers in vocational education under the Smith-Hughes Act. These courses are designed not only for teachers now engaged in teaching agriculture, but for others who wish to qualify for this field of work.

The courses in agriculture and horticulture of the summer session offer a good opportunity to men discharged from military and naval service who wish instruction in agriculture as a preparation for farming.

The College has already held two special short courses for returned soldiers and sailors and endeavors to assist these men to find positions on the farms of the State when the course has been completed.

A well organized program in home economics for teachers, homemakers, club workers, and others has been arranged to meet the growing demand for this phase of work in the Summer School. These courses in home economics have been very popular in previous summer schools and additional instructors and courses have been provided for this summer.

All the courses offered at the Summer School are free.

The term begins June 30th and closes July 26th.

Swift & Company 1919 Employee's Stock Savings Plan

Every employee of Swift & Company is to be given an opportunity to become a partner in the business, according to an announcement made by officials of the company today. Distribution of a portion of the stock now held in the company's treasury is to be made at par ($100) to every employee who has been on the pay-roll for six months.

The 1919 Employee's Stock Savings Plan, as the scheme is known, provides that any employee, from office or messenger boy in the plant to the highest executive, may purchase these shares at a price far below that at which the stock is quoted on the stock exchanges in the country.

Under the plan provided, the stock may be paid for by the employee on a basis of $10.00 per share down and a dollar a week per share to be deducted from his salary. If the employee is paying for Liberty Bonds, he may have shares reserved for him and not begin payment until after he has completed his Liberty Bond payments.

The amount of stock to be allotted to each employee will be fixed according to wages or salary, ranging from one (1) to five (5) shares each, as follows:

Weekly Salary or Wage	Entitled to Shares
Up to $20	1
$20 to $30	2
$30 to $40	3
$40 to $50	4
Over $50	5

"We believe that Swift & Company will greatly benefit by this plan of distribution," said Mr. L. F. Swift, president of the company. "We want our employees to have an active interest in the business and to feel that they are really a part of it rather than mere wage earners. There is no reason why every person on the pay-roll of Swift & Company should not be a partner in the business, and we believe that by this method we will be giving them a good opportunity to become identified with it in a closer way than that of being on the pay-roll."

"We now have, under our Employees' Stock Investment plan, more than 5,000 employees who are shareholders. This plan has been in operation for a number of years and provides that stock is to be sold to employees on the basis of ten per cent down and the balance over a period of two years. The employee purchasing in this way pays the market price for his shares. Under the 1919 Employees' Stock Savings plan he will secure shares at par."

6000 Lawrence Men Eligible for Legion

About 6000 Lawrence men are eligible for membership in the local post of the American Legion. The organization may be perfected at a meeting in the State Armory tomorrow night. Maj. Frank L. Donovan, who was in command of the American Section of the Inter-Ally Tank Center during the war, is active in organizing. He conferred with Col. John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, when the latter was here one week ago.

About 1000 Lawrence veterans have returned, and it is planned to have many turn out on Memorial Day to parade with the Grand Army veterans. It is probable that a post also will be formed in Methuen, where about 600 were in the service.

A Keen Criticism

To the Editor of the Townsman:

I am not much in the habit of agreeing with Senator Lodge against President Wilson; but on this matter of the League of Nations I certainly do. Lodge's argument in his debate with Lowell, that if such a League had existed earlier it would have been impossible for the United States to become independent by the aid of France, or for Cuba to become independent by the aid of the United States, remains unanswered and unanswerable. Lowell's reply to it was so pitifully weak that in the revised reports Lowell preferred to suppress that reply and let it seem that he had made no attempt to answer this argument.

And Lodge did not even hit as hard as he might. He did not point out that while the League would have forbidden the United States to help Cuba against Spain, it would not have forbidden Germany to help Spain against Cuba. The Monroe Doctrine clause would not have done this, for the Monroe Doctrine has never yet been so interpreted as to forbid any European power to help a sovereign power suppress a rebellion in America. If Mexico should get into the League and then turn Bolshevik, and should undertake to give the wheat-fields of Bolshevik Russia (supposing that the Bolsheviks hold their ground there) a preference over those of the United States in the supply of binder-twine, and if Yucatan where the binder-twine comes from should revolt and try to keep up commerce with the United States, the League would allow Russia to help Yucatan down and would forbid the United States to help hold Yucatan up. And if any other state, such as Guatemala, gave any help to Yucatan, then the League would require the United States to help put Yucatan down for the benefit of Russia. Naturally I do not expect that this precise thing is going to happen. But I certainly do expect that something equally troublesome and equally unexpected is going to happen somewhere on earth.

The experiment of trying to prevent all war by a League of Nations which undertook to maintain existing sovereign powers was tried a hundred years ago. At that time the Big Five who were running the League held together only eight years, and then the League came to a disgraceful smash, because it was undertaking to maintain existing sovereign powers, and because the maintaining of these powers was intolerable. It does not need to be proved by a second experiment that a League of Nations will not prevent war unless it is a League of a different sort from that. If there were not on earth to-day any place where an existing domination is intolerable, there would be such a place in a few years, because the world has to keep changing. The League has been so built as to make change difficult; that is its sufficient condemnation.

I believe that if the Senate will still refuse, at whatever cost, to let the United States become a partner in the League without radical amendment in this respect at least, they will be backed by a steadily increasing body of public feeling which soon will be, if it is not already, the majority opinion of the nation. And I believe that most of those who back the League will live to see themselves apologizing for this on the ground that they were for the League because they saw that somebody else was for it.

The following marriage announcement copied from The London Court Journal will be of interest to Andover persons.

ROBERTS—CUMMING
"On April 11th at Princess Gate Baptist Church, Liverpool, by the Rev. P. Williams, assisted by the Rev. L. H. Marshall, B. A. B. D., Captain Samuel Foster Roberts, K. L. R., third son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Roberts of Walborn, Liverpool to Agnes Ferguson Cumming of Andover, Massachusetts and Washington, D. C. U. S. A., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cumming, late of Andover and of 2 Caumming Street, Liverpool."

Flowers of the Dell

Fair are the flowers that bloom in the dell,
Which God in His wisdom has chosen so well
To brighten the spots where the sun seldom shines.
'Neath the tall sturdy oaks and evergreen pines,
In rich virgin soil so fertile and deep Tucked away under leaves through the winter they sleep.

Awaking in spring with the birds' merry song,
And the ripple of the brook as it rushes along
Through meadow and woodland with steep flowery brae,
Where the rocks stem the water as it flows on its way.

By cool shady nook where the ferns love to dwell,
With their lovely companions, the flowers of the dell.
Flowers of the forest, choice gifts from above,
Dear little emblems of truth and of love.

Sown by the wind and the birds of the air,
Scarcely by man's hand with motherly care,
Gems of the wilderness that bloom in the shade,
Charming and sweet as a modest young maid,
Favorites of old that the pilgrim once knew
Only to love as true patriots can do.

Friends of our youth so constant and true,
The fragrant Arbutus and Violet so blue.

BAY STATE BUILDING

The lines from Rupert Brooke's other poem "The Dead" are given so often that today the Townsman is giving this less frequently used poem with the same title for Memorial Day. These hearts were woven of human joys and cares; Washed marvellously with sorrow, swift to birth; The years had given them kindness. Dawn was theirs; And sunset, and the colors of the earth. These had seen movement, and heard music; known Slumber and waking; loved; gone proudly friended; Felt the quick stir of wonder; sat alone; Touched flowers and furs and cheeks. All this is ended.

There are waters blown by changing winds to laughter And lit by the rich skies, all day. And after, Frost, with a gesture, stays the waves that dance And wandering loveliness. He leaves a white Unbroken glory, a gathered radiance, A width, a shining peace, under the night.

A marriage of interest, whether or not one knows the persons concerned, was that of the daughter of George Doran, the publisher, to the son of Mrs. Mary Roberts Rhinehart, the writer.

"Ceiling Movies" are among the innovations inaugurated by the American Red Cross for the comfort, convenience and entertainment of bed-ridden soldiers.

With a specially constructed machine the Red Cross projects pictures on the ceilings, thus enabling men who are required to remain on their backs, to see their favorite films without discomfort.

The campaign for 50,000 books for soldiers and sailors began Saturday in New York City, when the foundation of the tower of books was placed on the steps of the Public Library on Fifth Avenue. This tower is to be thirty-two feet high and it is estimated that one hundred thousand books closely packed, will be needed to complete the tower.

It will be a fine sight and stands for such a worth-while object; namely, the keeping interested and happy our boys on transports, in the hospitals, in Russia and Serbia and with the army of Occupation in Germany. The American Library Association is to continue the collecting, packing and shipping of books for they realize how many thousands are still needed.

At the Memorial Hall Library all the work of sorting, packing and sending is done. It seems as if everybody in town could add at least a few magazines or a book or two.

The members of Company 11 will probably miss their weekly meetings. It was a good thing for the town, too, to have that representative group of fine men get together and know each other. The physical training they got must have been a fine help to them individually and, while going to drill every week may have seemed a bother sometimes, the benefits must have been more than the bothers.

The Townsman realized what a worthwhile organization this was when she saw them all doing duty at the Emory Hill Base hospital. That must have been a marvelous experience and those days on that gloriously beautiful hill will probably not soon be forgotten. Captain Page's work there will not soon be forgotten either, nor will Cook West's doughnuts, nor the night duties and many other things.

Anyway we hope that the Rifle Club will keep these men interested in each other and in the welfare of the town.

One of the most beautiful musical treats that Andover has ever enjoyed was given last evening in the chapel. "The Hymn of Praise" is inspiring always, and it was gloriously sung by that large volume of voices. Mr. Pfaltzsch's contributions to the musical life of the town are indeed valuable and this last was certainly the biggest and greatest of all.

It is interesting to know in this connection that the combined choruses of Smith and Amherst Colleges, gave Haydn's "Creation" several weeks ago in Northampton.

The Townsman

Not to be Caught

The head of the Government department office was reproving a subordinate for not having written a sufficiently clear letter.

"He who cannot make himself understood," thundered the chief, "is a fool! Do you understand me, eh?"

"No, sir," was the answer.

A Kind Friend

"Hello, Tom," said Dick. "Can you lend me a dollar till tomorrow? I've left my purse at home?"

"I'm sorry, old chap, but I haven't the cash to spare. However, I'll tell you where you can get it."

"How?"

"Here's a nickel. Take the subway home and get your purse."

Army Has 8,500 Planes

New planes and engines in the active group included 9,725 service engines, 2,261 service planes, 1,997 training engines, and 740 training planes, while in the obsolescent group there were 4,511 new training engines and 498 new training planes, and in the obsolete group, there were 1,638 new engines and 1,037 new planes.

Liquor Stills May Not Be Set Up

To set up a liquor still in your own home, or anywhere, without first registering it with the Bureau of Internal Revenue is a serious offence, carrying with it the penalty of a heavy fine, or imprisonment or both, and the forfeiture of the still and all the personal property of the offender found in the building or in the premises where the still was seized.

To make a mash from which alcohol may be distilled is punishable by a fine of not less than $500 or imprisonment or both.

Any person manufacturing a still or distilling worm, so called, may not remove the still from the point of manufacture without notifying the Collector of Revenue in the district in which the still is to be set up, its capacity, by whom it is to be used and the date of removal. In addition, makers of stills must pay a special tax. Heavy penalties may be levied if this law is violated.

These and other regulations governing the making of liquor stills and their use in producing beverages of alcoholic content, were made public this week by Collector of Internal Revenue John E. Malley.

Not So Small After All

While King Victor of Italy was motoring with the Queen a breakdown occurred and a curious crowd, among which were two English tourists, collected round the royal car.

"Pretty car," commented one of the tourists.

"Yes," answered his friend, "and the lady is pretty, too."

"More than can be said of the man. Did you ever see such a little man in such a big car? By the way, I am out of br. ndy. I wonder if he can supply me. Shall I ask? Perhaps he speaks French."

"I shall be most happy to oblige you," said the King in perfect English, to the amazement of the tourists, holding out his flask. Then, as he prepared to leave, he added: "Can I be of any further use to you? My kingdom is at your disposal—and it is not so small as its monarch." And before the astonished tourists had recovered from their confusion the car had vanished from view.

Contentment

One of the recent new books in the library handles the English land tenants' point of view.

"The farmer talking to a lady visitor says, 'I like to think of everything that is growing on the land—and every little thing that's done to make it grow—and the men who do it all; some of them get wise—always living and working on it, and you will never learn all they know if you read about it till the end of your life.'"

The lady says something about the hedger and ditcher, who is proud of his cleverness. The farmer answers,

"That is the work a man can enjoy, done with his hands. You are helping nature and you learn the ways of nature, and she helps you. There is never any monotony in nature, she's alive."

Then she tells of the ditcher who raises his family on a small income. "There is no anxiety about a life, when you have been trained to do those things, or to do without things and not to want them," and goes on to tell of one's satisfaction out of things you have, which is more than that worry over things one has to do without.

Here is Paul's advice often rendered, "In whatsoever station you are called therewith to be content." According to the Greek, as interpreted by the late Rev. George Moore, he says it should be "therein" to be content, which does not interfere with your taking a step up if it is handy.

This lady was one of those who, in a village abroad, was part of the village machine, the family, who at the center gave the loyal hedger and ditcher of the estate his flag, for security. It was the survival of the old spirit of feudalism that dies hard in the Saxon. And on this great trait we of America stand secure. Our village, our common weal, our love of our lands and all they stand for. It took more to fill the lady of the tale, though she really enjoyed her simple life, than it did the farmer. She was not a bread winner, but she would have taken her place as one without a change of heart.

I was mainly interested in the farmer's point of view, it was so different from that of the tossing souls of the restless in all lands. It was the same in the days of Israel's judges, later when David came to rule, and now at the return to the land from the world's captivity. The wandering Jew is the best type of a home-lover.

And all through the countries that are coming from under the weight of oppression, a longing for something stable, a home, a place to live free and die in peace is developing.

Any plan or league, whatever the name, that gives the desperate, unrefined class the spirit that the old farmer had, is what the world needs today. Around our simple village life today, the world stands to contribute its millions. Every day, I am indebted here in our own old Saxon Andover village life for the commonest supplies; and there is a place and room for all to get about the work of supplying the varied wants of just one such community. It would be a good subject for a prize composition, to show how we depend on the great round world.

But the lesson we need most, is that of Paul's "Therein" to be content in the place where we heard His voice till His call comes to other work, and it always will come. And the ten generations on Andover Hill can afford to be patient with the storm-tossed souls so near us.

The visit I made once with the Grand Army to Detroit, gave me a delightful stop-over with our late neighbor, Mary Towle, and her husband, Rev. Mr. Wright, who was the most active home missionary with other work among the Poles of Detroit. He was a big man, and knew no fear; and when they had a wedding or funeral, he was often called on to interfere, and keep the whole crowd from a free fight and knife play. We have not raised that kind of a citizen here in America. And when you take the fiery Pole at one extreme, and that plain, happy old English farmer at the other, it is easy to see who is going to win, and who always will win. Be thankful you are of the great and happy middle class. Pray like the Hebrew in the Proverbs, that you may not be let down into the Hell of the discontented, nor lifted to the greed of the covetous. Begin right here, on your own doorstep. Envy no man his belongings, but stand by your own rights all the same. "Therein" be content, not "therewith," if you choose.

Well Mebbe So—I Dunno

They tell me these here Fourteen Points Will pacify the war-like joints, That there won't be no war no more— An' no more gas an' guns an' gore An' all the pugilistic Hicks Will put away their knives and bricks— Well, mebbe so, I dunno.

They tell me that this here, now, I League Will put an end to all intrigue, That all the birds on land an' sea Will in their little nests agree, An' 'stead of treating others rough Will bill an' coo, an' all that stuff, Well, mebbe so, I dunno.

The Bolshevik, I'm told by some Is not so altogether rum, An' others say the geek's a curse, While still more say he ain't so warm, An' some say this, and some say that, Do all these guys know where their eat? Well, mebbe so, I dunno.

"It is the war" they told us guys When all the prices hit the skies, An' now when prices still increase, These eggs retort "It is the peace!" Some cry "Supply"—some yell "Demand." They say we books can't understand, Well, mebbe so, I dunno.

Now is the time to fix that leaky roof.

WHY REYNOLDS SHINGLES ARE THE BEST:

Reynolds shingles were the first asphalt shingles made.

They have had more years actual roof-test service than any other asphalt shingle.

They have been on roofs for eighteen years and are still found to be in good condition.

They are surfaced with granulated rock, slate, etc., and the natural colors are retained—reds, greens and gray—non-fading, beautiful.

Reynolds shingles are guaranteed—They will not split, rust, curl, leak nor blow off.

Economical to buy, economical to lay, no repairs or painting required.

Reynolds shingles possess the three cardinal shingle virtues—Beauty, Durability and Economy.

The mineral surfacing acts as a fire-preventive, making an insulation against flying sparks and brands. These shingles have been tested in the insurance underwriters laboratories and have been officially approved as fire-retardants.

Do not be misled into thinking all Asphalt shingles are alike. They are not. There are as many grades of Asphalt shingles as there are names. Reynolds shingles are the improved, approved, and proven best to use.
